BC CHILDREN'S HOSPITAL SEEKS PECTUS REPAIR PATIENTS

BC Children's Hospital is in the process of contacting a select group of past patients who had a specific type of pectus repair surgery and hardware insertion performed at the hospital, between the early 1980s and early 2009.

This procedure includes surgically inserting a metal strut to address a condition that involves a concave deformity of the chest and ribs. The strut helps hold the chest in proper position and at the time of the surgeries noted, it was not considered standard practice by the physicians performing this procedure for the hardware to be removed.

Over time, this practice has changed and the local medical community has become aware of cases where older migrating hardware may cause health complications. Patients are not necessarily at risk, but in the interest of ensuring patient safety long term, BC Children's Hospital is now contacting past patients about the situation and consulting with them about the most appropriate clinical course of action based on their individual circumstances.

Every effort is being made to contact patients directly, but in some cases individuals have moved and no known address is available. We encourage those who had this procedure performed at BC Children's Hospital in the timeframe identified to contact us at 1-855-875-2507.

There is no broad public health risk; this advisory applies to a specific patient population and even within this group, not all patients will be impacted. BC Children's Hospital staff want to speak to patients and determine their health status; arrangements are already in place to coordinate follow up care as required.

BC Children's Hospital, an agency of the Provincial Health Services Authority, provides expert care for the province's most seriously ill or injured children, including newborns and adolescents. BC Children's is an academic health centre affiliated with the University of British Columbia, Simon Fraser University, and the Child & Family Research Institute. For more information, please visit www.bcchildrens.ca.

The Provincial Health Services Authority (PHSA) plans, manages and evaluates selected specialty and province-wide health care services across BC, working with the five geographic health authorities to deliver province-wide solutions that improve the health of British Columbians. For more information, please visit www.phsa.ca.
