MINISTRY OF FINANCE GOVERNMENT ENCOURAGING WIDER PRIVATE-SECTOR PENSION COVERAGE

The Province has introduced legislation to modernize the Pension Benefits Standards Act and allow the private sector to offer a wider choice of pension-plan options so that more British Columbians can have access to pension income during their retirement years.

Bill 38 brings improvements to pension legislation by reducing administrative costs and will enhance the rights of pension plan members, including immediate entitlement to employer-paid contributions and more information about how a plan is operating. The bill will extend the same right to receive plan information to retired members.

In addition, it establishes a framework that will give former pension plan members the option of withdrawing "locked-in" funds in a Registered Retirement Savings Plan or life income fund in cases of financial hardship.

The changes permit innovative alternatives to existing plans, such as jointly sponsored cost-sharing pension plans and target benefit plans. Under the jointly sponsored cost-sharing plan model, similar to what currently exists in public-sector pension plans, employers and employees would contribute equally to all elements of the pension plan.

Other key amendments include requiring governance and funding policies for defined benefit and target benefit plans.

This bill provides the superintendent of pensions, the Province's pension regulator, with new tools, including the power to levy administrative penalties and appoint replacement administrators or actuaries.

Other key amendments include requiring governance and funding policies for defined benefit and target benefit plans.

The changes will also ensure that legislative support exists for the regulation of pension plans that have members located in more than one province.

Quotes:

Minister of Finance Kevin Falcon -

"Pensions are the cornerstone of a family's retirement savings. The new plan design options such as target benefit plans, and improved pension plan disclosure requirements, will help to ensure British Columbian's retirement savings options are maximized."

"Employers have said they need streamlined regulation so that they can focus on their business and not on red tape. Modernizing the legislation gives employers more flexibility to offer a wider choice of pension plan options, so that more British Columbians can have access to pension income during their retirement years."

The Mini Sirloin Twins are back. But don't let appearances fool you. While this cute twosome may be easy on the eyes, they're even easier on the taste buds with their big sirloin flavor. So be sure to visit your nearest A&W soon, and get reacquainted with your favourite little miracles. Because they won't last long.

HOW IS CANDY MADE?

The specifics are different for each type of candy, but the basic process is the same: Candy is made by dissolving sugar in water. The level of heat determines what kind of candy results. Hot temperatures make hard candy, medium heat will make soft candy and cool temperatures make chewy candy.

WHAT IS CANDY? The word typically refers to things that are made from sugar, whether sprinkled on top, or added to a liquid and then heated usually to boiling point. At this temperature liquid sugar turns into a caramel, which is the name of one type of candy. Fortunately, there is no end to the types of candies that human beings have, and no doubt will produce.

MINISTRY OF ENERGY AND MINES

MODERNIZING B.C.'S LIQUOR DISTRIBUTION SYSTEM

The Province has approached the private sector with the opportunity to provide a more modernized and cost-effective way to warehouse and distribute liquor in British Columbia.

A Negotiated Request for Proposal has been issued to the private sector for the delivery of services related to liquor warehousing and distribution.

Currently, liquor is distributed throughout B.C. by both public and private services. The two government-owned warehouses distribute approximately 43 per cent of the liquor volume in the province.

The Liquor Distribution Branch is responsible for the distribution, wholesaling and retailing of alcohol in B.C. and operates 195 government liquor stores and two warehouses. The two warehouses are not part of this process and will be handled separately as a real estate transaction. Government-operated liquor stores will not be affected by this Negotiated Request for Proposal.

The two warehouses employ about 500 British Columbia General Employees Union (BCGEU) staff between them. Recently, the provincial government and the BCGEU reached an agreement on a package of measures to accommodate these employees. The Negotiated Request for Proposal document can be viewed online at BC Bid:
