Direct printing offers vivid, crisp reproduction of text and images. While vinyl overlays can reproduce a nice image (assuming the original file is a high resolution or vector image) it won't be as sharp or vibrant as direct printing

Saulteau First Nations calls on the Province to give local hunters priority in limited moose hunting draws

The Saulteau First Nations have weighed in on moose management in the province. The First Nation issued a statement on the matter Monday. "We support the initiative to establish new regulations and increased research into moose management that is being proposed by the Province. These kinds of measures are necessary to make sure that moose populations are sustainable for First Nations and non-First Nations in the Peace Region. Everyone who has lived here for a long time has seen how things have been changing over the years," it reads. "There is way more industrial activity on the land than ever before, and more is coming with the build up for LNG projects. More well-sites and roads and pipelines and transmission lines bring economic activity to the region, which we support keeping in mind the need to also protect wildlife. But so far the focus has only been on development and not on reclamation. That means less habitat for wildlife and more habitat fragmentation. Past governments did not invest in wildlife management, and the science on these topics is weak at best." Saulteau notes this is why they have seen moose populations decline across the entire province. "We do not want that problem to spread to the Peace Region more than it already has. Everyone who has lived here for a long time also knows that moose populations are already declining, and that a wide open season on moose doesn't make sense anymore. The roads and trails are over crowded with hunters in the Fall, and most of them are from out-of-region. We need to find a better balance."

Thank you to the Agro crew for their fast work draining the lake at the end of the drive way.

From Ron & Evon

On a fishing trip to a remote lake in Northern Quebec, I asked the outfitter, "Do you stay here during the winter?" "No," he said. "The snow gets too deep. We can't get supplies in. Like many Canadians, I go south for the winter." "Oh," I said. "Where do you go?" "Vermont."

Honeypot ants swell up to a huge size with food. Honeypot ants have to be seen to be believed. During wet season, certain ants consume huge amounts of nectar, making their abdomens swell up to the size of a grape. Then, during dry season, they provide the other ants with food by throwing the nectar back up again. Yum!

Chetwynd Auto Body, now known as CSN Chetwynd, was acquired by Lift Auto Group on Feb. 1, 2022, and has since become a part of the CSN Collision Centres Network. "The sale to Lift Auto Group is a win-win for our community," former Chetwynd Auto Body co-owner Sheree Rodenbush says. "Our six employees keep their jobs, our town keeps its shop, and we can continue to serve the region. It's a win for everybody." Sheree and her husband, Martin, purchased the shop in April 1994 and have been working tirelessly since then, ensuring their customers drive away with peace of mind. "I was in the industry prior to buying the business. I had a home shop, and I'll be returning to the hobby shop again. I got into the industry because I liked cars, and I made a living off it for a long time," Martin says. "We decided to slow life down, and the only way to do so was to sell the business." When pursuing buyers, Sheree and Martin's priority was to sell Chetwynd Auto Body as a turn-key business. They owned the business and the building that it is housed in and could have shut the shop's doors and just sold the real estate. But their preference was to ensure that the shop would continue to be available to serve the community. "We really wanted to see the business carry on. We had good employees who had been here for such a long time," Sheree says. "We've heard good things about Lift Auto Group, and I'm confident they'll do good things for our town, employees and customers. It's in good hands." Martin will continue working with cars, fixing hot rods in his home shop. "I'm pretty happy with it all," he says. The CSN Collision Centres Network exists to assist independent collision repair facilities to enhance operations through performance assessments, ongoing training, and marketing initiatives. Chetwynd residents will now have the advantage of accessing familiar services from well-known local staff with the expanded resources that come from being members of a larger collective. "There is so much support," new location manager Nicole Bratt says. "Lift supports our location in all areas of the business, from marketing to parts, to day-to-day operations." CSN Chetwynd prides itself on providing the highest level of customer service and treating your vehicle as if it's one of their own. CSN Chetwynd's repair facility will return your vehicle to its pre-accident condition, guaranteed. Staff are fully trained and licensed auto body repair experts who use state-of-the-art technology to restore your vehicle so that you can safely get back on the road. Getting into a car accident can be a scary and stressful experience. CSN Chetwynd works closely with ICBC to ensure all your needs are taken care of so you can confidently get back behind the wheel of your vehicle. "We take care of everything. We also have courtesy cars and a courtesy truck for use while you're getting your repairs done," Bratt says. CSN Chetwynd will also advise you on the right steps to take throughout the entire auto body repair process, including everything from dealing with insurance and professional estimates through to collision repair. "All of your repair needs can be taken care of here, so don't hesitate to give us a call." For more information, visit liftautogroup.com.
